PIT Lane Rule: from the IAAF - When an athlete's mode of progression does not comply with the Rules of Race Walking, instead of being disqualified on the third red card, the athlete incurs a time penalty. The time penalty consists of the athlete having to stop for a set time in a designated area long the course – the "pit lane". Once the penalty time is over, the athlete is allowed to rejoin (continue) the race. The time penalty is NOT attributed to the athlete at the end of the race, so the finishing position of the athletes is the final one. The Chief Judge maintains the power as per the IAAF Rules to immediately disqualify an athlete in the last 100m of a race.
